

MAX Life Accelerator

Day 6: Travel

Where do you want to go?

Write down all the places in the world you want to travel to and why. Often times, even if we can't travel as much as we want, examining the places we want to visit can give us insight into the things we love, as well as our values and interests. What do your dream destinations say about you?

Heather to the MAX

MAX Life Accelerator

Day 6: Travel

What do you want to learn?

Travel enriches our lives because of the way that it teaches us about the world around us. When thinking about the places you would like to go, it can be helpful to think about the kinds of things we want to learn. What kinds of places can you visit that will help teach you about your current interests? Think first about what you want to learn, and then think of destinations you could travel to in order to learn more about those things.